excerpt from the dialogues of plato vol 4 of 5 translated into english with analyses and introductions the philebus appears to be one of the later writings of plato in which the style begins to alter and the dramatic and poetical element has become subordinate to the speculative and philosophical in the development of abstract thought great advances have been made on the protagoras or the phaedrus and even on the republic but there is a corresponding diminution of artistic skill a want of character in the persons a laboured march in the dialogue and a degree of confusion and incompleteness in the general design as in the speeches of thucydides the multiplication of ideas seems to interfere with the power of expression instead of the equally diffused grace and case of the earlier dialogues there occur two or three highly wrought passages pp 15 16 63 instead of the ever flowing play of the sort of legislation is ill adapted to a legislator who has not despotic power the truth is that there are three forms of government the best the second and third best which we may just mention and then leave the selection to the ruler of the settlement following this method in the present instance let us speak of that state which is first and second and third in excellence and then leave to cleinias or to any one who has any choice the selection of that form of polity which he approves in his own country the first and highest form of the state and of the government and of the law is that in which there prevails most widely the ancient saying that friends have all things in common whether there is now or ever will be this communion of women and children and of property in which the private and individual is altogether banished from life and things which are by nature private such as
