between 1900 and 1950 many internationalist u s women referred to themselves as citizens of the world this book argues that the phrase was not simply a rhetorical flourish it represented a demand to participate in shaping the global polity and an expression of women s obligation to work for peace and equality the nine women profiled here invoked world citizenship as they promoted world government a permanent machinery to end war whether in the form of the league of nations the united nations or a full fledged world federation these women agreed neither on the best form for such a government nor on the best means to achieve it and they had different definitions of peace and different levels of commitment to genuine equality but they all saw themselves as part of a global effort to end war that required their participation in the international body politic excluded from full national citizenship they saw in the world polity opportunities for engagement and equality as well as for peace claiming world citizenship empowered them on the world stage it gave them a language with which to advocate for international cooperation citizens of the world not only provides a more complete understanding of the kind of world these women envisioned and the ways in which they claimed membership in the global community it also draws attention to the ways in which they were excluded from international institution building and to the critiques many of them leveled at those institutions women s arguments for world government and their practices of world citizenship represented an alternative reaction to the crises of the first half of the twentieth century one predicated on cooperation and equality rather than competition and force sweeping the globe from seoul to amsterdam london to japan american citizen global citizen is now being released for the first time in the united states it is not enough for us to wait for everyone else to fix the problems that plague our world we must realize our global common ground in every aspect of our lives and become aware of the basic skills that will enable us to be effective anywhere on this planet learn how to give yourself a richer and more meaningful life and pass along a better world for generations to come publisher s description the idea of global citizenship is that human beings are citizens of the world whether or not we are global citizens is a topic of great dispute however those who take part in the debate agree that a global citizen is a member of the wider community of humanity the world or a similar whole which is wider than that of a nation state or other political community of which we are normally thought to be citizens through four main sections the contributors to global citizenship discuss global challenges and attempt to define the ways in which globalization is changing the world in which we live offering a breadth of coverage to the core theme of the individual in a global world global citizenship combines two factors the idea of global responsibility and the development of institutional structures through which this responsibility can be exercised a globalized world places new demands on us as citizens global citizen challenges and responsibility in an interconnected world gives insight and perspectives on what it means to be a citizen in a global world from norway s most distinguished scholars it poses and answers important questions such as which duties and rights do we have as citizens in a globalized world which institutions are just and sustainable and how can a global ethic and a global worldview be reconciled with the fact that the lives of the greater part of the earth s population is still local global citizen challenges and responsibility in an interconnected world draws on insights from philosophy jurisprudence theology and the social sciences to shed light on this manifold and important topic with relevance for policy makers stakeholders academics but most important for us as citizens who need to take both a political and personal decision on how to live as a citizen in a global world there is a flourishing literature on citizenship education in china that is mostly unknown in the west liberal political theorists often assume that only in democracy should citizens be prepared for their future responsibilities yet citizenship education in china has undergone a number of transformations as the political system has sought to cope with market reforms globalization and pressures both externally and within the country for broader political reforms over the past decade chinese scholars have been struggling for official recognition of citizenship education as a key component of the school curriculum in these changing contexts this book analyzes the citizenship education issues under discussion within china and aims to provide a voice for its scholars at a time when china s international role is becoming increasingly important citizens of the world deals with the baha is and their religion while covering the historical development in sufficient detail to serve as a general monograph on baha i emphasis is laid on examining contemporary baha i with the danish baha i community as a recurrent case the book discusses baha i religious texts rituals economy everyday life demographic development mission strategies leadership and international activism in analyses based on primary material such as interview studies among the baha is fieldwork data from the baha i world centre in israel and field trips around the world the approach is a combination of history of religions and sociology of religion within a theoretical framework of religion and globalisation several general topics in the study of new religions are covered the book contributes to the theoretical study of globalisation by proposing a new model for analysing globalisation and transnational religions we are all aware of the number of global problems that need to be solved in order to save the future of the world financial crises the environment and terrorism to name a few but as the author of this stimulating and practical book makes clear it is not enough for us to wait for governments and international companies to sort things out we all have to realise our global common ground amidst differences everywhere in our lives both at home and at work locally and abroad at the moment we are putting forward piecemeal solutions to global issues when we really need to start seeing ourselves as citizens of the world if we are to effect real change the author mark gerzon is perfectly placed to explain this important new step which he believes we all need to take he travels the globe lecturing consulting and training with clients ranging from chinese and american politicians to leaders of the world s top think tanks encouraging them to work together and to sharpen four key skills witnessing learning connecting and partnering only when we have all truly become global citizens does he believe we will become fully fledged members of the human race and start to solve the many crises facing our world
